

Deciding Whether to Use an HSA or HRA: Comparative Chart for Sponsors of Multiemployer Health Plans

This chart is designed to help trustees of multiemployer health plans and fund administrators decide which individual account option is best for their plan.¹ The Notes section can be used to keep notes on impressions regarding each choice.

Issue	Health Reimbursement Arrangements (HRA) ²	Health Savings Accounts (HSA) ³	Notes
Funding	Accounts can be “paper” only (“notional accounts”).	Accounts must be funded in a trust that meets HSA requirements.
Trustee	Trustees can manage the HRA just like any other benefit available through the fund.	Trustees must hire an HSA trustee to manage the HSA (either a bank, insurer or other entity certified by the IRS to be an HSA trustee). A plan may select an HSA trustee or simply leave it up to the employee to create his or her own HSA. The plan could pay the administrative costs, but more likely they would be deducted from the accounts (i.e. , paid by the participants).
Plan Contributions	The trustees may create a benefit design that gives each participant a certain amount in his or her HRA, whether or not the collective bargaining parties have negotiated an HRA.	A plan may create an HSA, but it does not have to contribute funds to the HSA. If the trustees wish, they can deposit funds into an HSA for individual participants.

(Continued on page 2.)

¹ This chart does not take flexible spending arrangements (FSAs) into account. Multiemployer health plans that have FSAs should discuss with their Segal consultant how the issues in this chart may change.

² HRAs were approved in Treasury Department Notice 2002-45 and Internal Revenue Service Revenue Ruling 2002-41.

³ HSAs were created by Section 223 of the Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement, and Modernization Act of 2003, which is also known as the Medicare Modernization Act (MMA). See also various Treasury Notices, Revenue Rulings and Revenue Procedures posted on the Treasury Department’s HSA technical guidance Web site at: <http://www.treas.gov/offices/public-affairs/hsa/technical-guidance/>

HSA OR HRA: COMPARATIVE CHART FOR SPONSORS OF MULTIEMPLOYER HEALTH PLANS

(Continued from page 1.)

Issue	Health Reimbursement Arrangements (HRA) ²	Health Savings Accounts (HSA) ³	Notes
Annual Contribution Maximum	No limit established by law	For 2007, maximum contribution is $2,850 (single)/$5,650 (family). For 2008: $2,900/$5,800. Dollar limit is indexed annually. Catch-up contributions allowed for individuals between 55 and 65 who are otherwise eligible to make HSA contributions. In 2007, can catch-up $800 with higher amounts up to $1,000 phased in.
Employer Contributions	The collective bargaining parties may designate a specific employer contribution amount to be made to an HRA (e.g., the employer will contribute $.50/hr toward an HRA for each covered employee). Alternatively, the plan can establish benefit packages at certain contribution levels, with HRAs included in the benefit package (e.g., employer contribution of $4.00/hr purchases health plan with certain benefits plus HRA to be funded at the level determined by the trustees each year).	Comparable contributions requirement – employer contributions (if any) must be comparable (same dollar amount or same percentage of deductible) across certain groups of employees.⁴ Effective 1/1/07, employers may provide lower HSA contributions to highly compensated employees.
Employee Contributions	Not permissible	Employees may contribute to an HSA either pre-tax through an employer's cafeteria plan or post-tax. If post-tax, they may deduct the contribution on their tax return as an above-the-line deduction (not subject to the limits on deducting medical expenses). If the plan and contributing employers do not have experience tracking employee contributions (e.g., 401(k) experience) and the plan will be transmitting employee contributions to the accounts, the trustees need to think about administrative issues.
Contributions for Medicare-Eligible Actives or Retirees	May be made	May not be made

(Continued on page 3.)

⁴ For more information about the IRS rules on comparable contributions, see Segal's August 2006 Bulletin, "Final IRS Rules on Comparable Contributions to HSAs," which is available on the following Web page: <http://www.segalco.com/publications/bulletins/aug06HSA.pdf>

HSA OR HRA: COMPARATIVE CHART FOR SPONSORS OF MULTIEMPLOYER HEALTH PLANS

(Continued from page 2.)

Issue	Health Reimbursement Arrangements (HRA) ²	Health Savings Accounts (HSA) ³	Notes
Participant Eligibility: Coverage under a High Deductible Health Plan (HDHP)⁵	HRAs can be combined with any other type of health coverage.	HSAs must be offered with an HDHP, and participant may not have any other overlapping health coverage. Preventive care expenses do not have to be subject to the HDHP deductible.
Links to Other Medical Benefits	HRAs can be offered alone or can be linked with another benefit. For example, an HRA could be offered to a participant who selects an HMO instead of an indemnity plan.	Participants in an HSA cannot be eligible for benefits in any other plan that covers the same services as the HDHP (i.e. , no other medical or drug coverage). HSA participants can be enrolled in other coverages, such as dental, vision, life and AD&D.
Carry-Forward of Account Balance	Yes, and carry-forward may be capped.	Yes, but carry-forward may not be capped.
Payable Medical Expenses	HRAs can pay for Qualified Medical Expenses under Internal Revenue Code (IRC) Section 213(d), COBRA premiums, retiree health premiums, long-term care premiums and over-the-counter drugs. HRA funds can be used to pay medical expenses incurred before the HDHP will pay. For example, HRA funds can be used by a participant or beneficiary to pay their deductible. Once the HDHP begins payment, HRA funds can be used to pay coinsurance. In addition, HRA funds can pay for medical expenses that are not covered under the HDHP.	Same except no reimbursement for Medigap premiums. HSA may also reimburse health premiums incurred while receiving unemployment compensation. If an individual uses the money for another purpose, it is taxable and there is a 10% penalty (waived in certain circumstances).
Limits on Payable Medical Expenses	Trustees can limit the expenses the HRA will pay for however they wish (e.g. , retiree medical and COBRA only).	Unclear, but distribution is tax-free if taken for “qualified medical expenses.” Therefore the trustees probably cannot limit the expenses paid from an HSA.
Substantiation of Medical Expenses	Required Administrator will need to be familiar with IRS Section 213(d) medical expense rules if these expenses are payable. If the HRA pays only for COBRA and retiree medical, substantiation issues are minimal.	Not required – only individual is responsible for keeping receipts.

(Continued on page 4.)

⁵ For 2007, a high-deductible health plan (HDHP) is a medical plan with an annual deductible of not less than $1,100 (single)/$2,200 (family) (preventive care expenses do not have to be subject to the deductible), and out-of-pocket maximum of $5,500 (single)/$11,000 (family). For 2008, the minimum deductible will remain the same, but the out-of-pocket maximum will increase to $5,600 (single)/$11,200 (family).

HSA OR HRA: COMPARATIVE CHART FOR SPONSORS OF MULTIEMPLOYER HEALTH PLANS

(Continued from page 3.)

Issue	Health Reimbursement Arrangements (HRA) ²	Health Savings Accounts (HSA) ³	Notes
Forfeiture/ Portability Rules	Trustees can establish whatever forfeiture rules they wish. Rules can address termination, retirement, break-in-service, and work jurisdictional issues. Effective 1/1/07, trustees may permit one-time distribution into HSA.	No forfeiture rules – once money is in the HSA, it belongs to the individual, who can keep the account (like an IRA) after losing plan coverage or leaving the industry.
Plan Document	Could be separate plan or could be amendment to existing plan	If an HDHP or HSA is set up by the trustees for their plan participants, then it will require a new HSA Trust Agreement, and possibly a new plan document (or modifications to the existing plan document). If the HSA is an ERISA plan then a summary plan description (SPD) is required, as well as other ERISA obligations.
Administrative Costs	HRA costs would vary depending on how the account is established. Plan would generally pay any administrative costs associated with the HRA. If accounts are “inactive” plan might decide to charge administrative fees to account balances.	HSA costs would include charges related to administration of the account by the HSA trustee. Plan or employee could pay administrative costs.
Interest on Account	Interest does not have to accrue to the individual's account. If the account will accrue interest, the administrative difficulty increases.	Interest would accrue to the individual's account; most plan sponsors offering HSAs will probably give participants investment control over the assets in their accounts.
COBRA	Required	Not required under the IRC, but probably required if the account is considered to be an ERISA employee welfare benefit plan. COBRA must be offered for the HDHP that must accompany the HSA.

THE SEGAL COMPANY

www.segalco.com

Atlanta	678.306.3100	Denver	303.714.9900	New Orleans	504.483.0744	Raleigh	919.233.1220
Boston	617.424.7300	Hartford	860.678.3000	New York	212.251.5000	San Francisco	415.263.8200
Calgary	403.692.2264	Houston	713.664.4654	Philadelphia	215.854.4017	Toronto	416.969.3960
Chicago	312.984.8500	Los Angeles	818.956.6700	Phoenix	602.381.4000	Washington	202.833.6400
Cleveland	216.687.4400	Minneapolis	952.857.2480	Princeton	609.520.2700		